

Parental Alienation: The Target Parent

Have you ever been isolated from your child?
Do you feel like your ex-partner has made it difficult for you to see or contact your child?
This study is looking at parental alienation from the point of view of the parent who is isolated from their child. If this is you, and you are interested in finding out more about the study or how you can participate, contact Sian Balmer at sbalmer@utas.edu.au or go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Feel free to take a tab below:

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>

Parental Alienation Study with the University of Tasmania. Go to <https://surveys.psychol.utas.edu.au/index.php/953868/lang-en>